

David T. Fung, Chancellor-elect

CAPILANO UNIVERSITY

Capilano University is pleased to announce David T. Fung as its chancellor-elect. A resident of the North Shore, Fung is an international leader in business, technology and sustainability with a history of proactive interest in post-secondary education.

Fung—who has a doctorate of chemical engineering from McGill University and was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Capilano University in 2014—is chair and CEO of the ACDEG Group of companies. He is an international entrepreneur and an advisor to a range of federal government departments.

As a member of Capilano University's Board of Governors and the Senate, the chancellor serves as a key ambassador and ceremonial head of the University.

Appointed by the University's Board of Governors on April 19, 2016, Fung will assume his duties following his formal investiture during Capilano University's convocation ceremony on June 6, 2016.
